Road safety report: Festive Break 2016

POLICE HAVE PRAISED THE MAJORITY OF QLD MOTORISTS FOLLOWING A DECREASE IN BOTH TRAFFIC CRASHES AND TRAFFIC OFFENCES DURING THE FESTIVE BREAK

Six people lost their lives on Queensland roads during the 12-day operation, down from seven fatalities during last Christmas period.

There were 264 traffic crashes which resulted in injury, down eight per cent on the same period last Christmas while the number of persons injured dropped 17 per cent.

Speeding offences were down 22 per cent on last year including speed camera detections which also decreased 24 per cent.

Police conducted more than 137,000 Random Breath Tests (RBTs) and 2,094 Roadside Drug Tests (RDTs) with 697 alleged drink drivers intercepted and 367 motorists testing positive to illicit drugs.

Despite a decrease in overall traffic infringements, police were disappointed with a minority of drivers who put themselves and all other road users at risk by engaging in high-risk behaviour.

The worst alleged speeding offences across Queensland included:

- A motorcyclist travelling at 240km/h in a 100km/h zone on the Bruce Highway near Maryborough on Christmas Eve.
- A motorist detected at 218km/h in a 110km/h zone on the M1 at Pimpama on December 29 (speed camera).
- A motorist detected at 209km/h in a 110km/h zone on the Bruce Highway at Glass House Mountains on January 2 (speed camera).

The worst alleged drink drivers across Queensland included:

- A 56-year-old Mount Gravatt woman was charged after allegedly returning a Breath Alcohol Concentration (BAC) of 0.346 per cent on Logan Road at Mount Gravatt on December 27.
- A 45-year-old woman was arrested after allegedly returning a BAC of 0.339 on Waterson Way at Airlie Beach on December 26.
- A 44-year-old Labrador man was charged with DUI after allegedly providing a BAC of 0.288 on Beaudesert Nerang Road at Witheren around 7.30pm on New Year's Eve.

The 50-day Christmas Road Safety Campaign is now in phase three - 'School Holidays' until 11.59pm January 22 when it moves into the final phase, 'Back to School'.

Changes motorists need to know in 2017

RACQ, THE STATE'S PEAK MOTORING BODY, HAS REASSURED QUEENSLAND MOTORISTS THEY SHOULD NOT BE WORSE OFF UNDER THE ETHANOL MANDATE WHICH TAKES EFFECT

From 1 January, all large fuel retailers will be required by law to ensure three percent of its regular petrol sales each quarter were bio-fuel based.

RACQ's Lauren Ritchie said the mandate should still allow motorists choice between fuels and offer competition across the State.

"Motorists will still be able to choose between unleaded, E10, premium, LPG and diesel at most service stations, despite the mandate on retailers," Ms Ritchie said.

"There's been some concern retailers will opt to remove unleaded petrol altogether to reach the E10 sales quota, as was the case in New South Wales, but we are assured the lower mandate in Queensland will prevent this from occurring.

"We encourage motorists to try E10 to see if it impacts on fuel usage or performance of their vehicles."

From 1 January, road closures for the Queen's Wharf development will take effect, impacting Brisbane CBD commuters heading back to work.

"Queen's Wharf Road (adjacent to the Brisbane River) will be permanently closed to all traffic and a section of William Street (between Elizabeth Street and Margaret Street) will also be closed," she said.

"Split traffic signals will also be introduced for motorists entering from the Elizabeth Street exit of the Riverside Expressway."

Ms Ritchie said motorists should also be aware toll prices for AirportlinkM7 will have a CPI increase effective 1 January but all other toll roads will remain the same price.

Forget dieting!

RETRAIN YOUR BRAIN TO BEAT STRESS AND LOSE WEIGHT

INTERNATIONALLY ACCLAIMED NEUROSCIENTIST TELLS US HOW TO MAKE IT HAPPEN

A QUT neuroscientist internationally acclaimed for her research on alcohol and sugar addiction claims brainpower rather than willpower is the key to living healthily.

Professor Selena Bartlett from QUT's Institute of Health and Biomedical Innovation said diets alone were rarely successful and our brains dictated our behaviour in a way unchanged since prehistoric times.

"Our brain responds to stress in an ancient way but it is possible to override it," said Professor Bartlett who has just published a book – MiGGi Matters: How to train your brain to manage stress and trim your body.

"Despite all the information out there on the dangers of being overweight and advice from countless weight-loss gurus, the Australian Bureau of Statistics tells us that 63 per cent of Australian adults are overweight or obese.

"When our ancient brain demands a pleasurable experience, it is common to reach for alcohol, sweet treats and comfort food. This is a problem for two reasons - they are high in calories leading to weight gain, and they are addictive."

Professor Bartlett's latest research shows sugar increases a neurochemical that binds to nicotinic receptors in the brain in the same way as alcohol and nicotine. Regular consumption of sugar, alcohol and nicotine change the brain, leading to the need to consume more and more to feel the same level of

DIETS CAN IN FACT MAKE US FATTER AND MORE STRESSED

"There is also overwhelming evidence that for many people who to lose weight through dieting, they quickly regain it. Diets can in fact make us fatter and more stressed.

"This is because we ignore our brain, which silently drives our behaviour as if we are still ancient humans living in prehistoric conditions.

"The same applies to addictive behaviours. When we are stressed our brain seeks pleasure and that's the problem."

Professor Bartlett said the brain has developed in complexity as humans have evolved and has three distinct sections - survival, emotional and rational.

"The survival section of the brain controls our heart beat, breathing and keeps us alive. The emotional section, in particular the amygdala, protects us from perceived danger by instigating a 'fight or flight' response while the rational section drives our functions like impulse control, planning and decision making," Professor Bartlett said.

"In today's stressful world of work, finances, relationships, parenting and other responsibilities the body releases stress hormones like cortisol. Over time stress hormones significantly reduce the number of synapses in the brain. This in turn impacts our rational brain and can reduce our impulse control.

"To counteract the damage caused by stress hormones, the ancient, emotional part of our brain drives us to find pleasure. When we experience pleasure, our body is flooded with hormones like dopamine, serotonin and endorphins. These bind to receptors in the brain and reduce the damaging effect of stress hormones.

"So the more stress you experience, the more your brain seeks pleasure to counter it.

pleasure.

"Just like alcohol and nicotine, a sudden decrease in sugar consumption will lead to withdrawal symptoms and cravings," she said.

"To overcome this we need to override the ancient brain. When the rational brain is in charge; sustainable weight loss is possible."

Professor Bartlett's book outlines the following five steps to help make this happen:

1. Be compassionate to your brain – it is an amazing, ancient organ that can be severely damaged by stress, especially in childhood while it is developing
2. Get to know the brain – an awareness of how the ancient amygdala drives your behaviour is critical to overriding unhealthy impulses
3. Identify when your amygdala is taking over or when you're having a "MiGGi moment" – in stressful situations acknowledge when you're suddenly taken by the urge to eat comforting food, smoke or drink alcohol
4. Replace food and alcohol with a MiGGi movement – deep breathing, stretching, walking, running; any movement that feels good
5. Reduce sugar and alcohol intake and increase cardiovascular and high intensity exercise – these will help to heal your brain of its stress-induced damage and build a strong, healthy body

Do I have an anger problem?

Hello Leonie,

I am hoping that you reply to my email in the Messenger. I love your straight forward approach and feel that you might offer me some help I have need for and not found from anyone else.

I have been told that I have an anger problem by my now ex-girlfriend. When someone says something like this of course I'm going to think about it. So I have given it a lot of thought and I have never acted out, abused her or been aggressive but I was however angry that she cheated on me, took money from my wallet while I was sleeping and the last straw was showing up at my Christmas party drunk.

I was angry and told her in no uncertain terms that we did not have a future. I spoke to my mum about this and she said that she did feel from time to time that I do get angry and I just feel that anger is an emotion just like being sad or frustrated and things happen that make people angry.

I am upset that mum has not sided with me and she never liked this girl anyway. Now I see that she has told people that we broke up supposedly because of my anger issues and I don't want to respond with the truth about her because firstly I don't think it's fair to trash someone online even if you are talking straight and the truth and secondly I just think that I shouldn't have to defend myself.

I have been upset over Christmas just dealing with the breakup and all of this bad mouthing is just piling on.

What do you think about this?

Name withheld/North Lakes

Hi,

Firstly I don't think you have anger issues but rather I feel that you have had an appropriate response to being mistreated. As you have rightly said anger is a perfectly human and natural reaction to being mistreated, trespassed against and wronged by someone else and it often alerts us that we are indeed being treated unfairly. If we don't get upset and angry when others mistreat us we may become victims and or doormats that have little self worth.

Frankly, I would be more worried about you if you didn't get angry about being cheated on and robbed. Many times over the years I have seen that people who have been cheated on, robbed or mistreated in some way often don't get any forward movement until they see the treatment they received clearly. Once a person can see that they have been abused emotionally, psychically or financially and they start to get angry about it, they often take the first steps in healing and creating a new way of operating in the world that protects them from abuse in the future.

There are some very good reasons to make sure that you don't fight the urge to get angry to the point of being comatose to please others. If you push down or hide anger in personal relationships, you are not playing fair because we rob your partners of the ability to address their behaviour.

If your partner doesn't know they've done something wrong (even if it's blindingly obvious) they can't address the issues that are upsetting us and this can be terminal to the union. You are also not being fair to yourself because you can't live your best life under the feet of others.

Additionally, anger can be a very motivating force that pushes us to rescue ourselves, seek compensation or change our situation in some other way. For instance if we don't get angry that our boss is not paying us money owed, we are unlikely to get motivated enough to make him accountable.

People who pay attention to all their emotions and respond accordingly tend to be happier and more successful in life than those who don't. There is not much you can do about the social media issues except to block and ignore the rubbish as best you can. Pretty soon these types will move on to trashing someone else so I would suggest not giving the situation any oxygen.

In the case of your mother: consider sitting down with her and explaining how you feel about her lack of support and perhaps show her this response. Reassure her that she has done a good job in raising a son that has set clear standards in his relationships and is no body's door mat.

Make sure you know your consumer rights

DID YOU GIVE OR RECEIVE A CHRISTMAS GIFT THAT WILL NEED TO BE RETURNED? SCORE A DUD AT THE BOXING DAY SALES?

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS WHEN IT COMES TO REFUNDS AND EXCHANGES.

Acting Attorney-General and Minister for Justice Stirling Hinchliffe said it was important Queenslanders knew what they are entitled to.

"According to Australian Consumer Law, shoppers are entitled to a refund or replacement if an item is faulty, damaged or dangerous," Mr Hinchliffe said.

"Queenslanders should also remember that while many retailers are happy to exchange or refund items if you change your mind, they aren't always legally obliged to.

"Take the receipt with you if you need to return, replace or exchange an item, this will help streamline the process."

Mr Hinchliffe also said "No refunds on sale items" were illegal and that consumers were entitled to a refund or replacement of a faulty, damaged or dangerous product, even if they purchased the product on sale.

The Palaszczuk Government also wants to ensure Queenslanders taking advantage of Boxing Day sales are not misled when it comes to price tags.

"When hitting the shops, make sure you pay extra attention at the cash register to ensure the scanned price was the same as the price you saw on the shelf," Mr Hinchliffe said.

"In sales after Christmas, retailers often mark down prices or hold promotions - which is great for shoppers, as long as the discounted price isn't misleading and the original price hasn't been inflated."

Mr Hinchliffe also encouraged Queenslanders who receive gift cards for Christmas to use them wisely so their value does not go to waste.

"If you receive a gift card, try and use it as quickly as possible to ensure you don't let it expire and to minimise the risk of the business going into administration or liquidation," he said.

"It's also a good idea to treat the cards like cash. If your gift card gets lost, it's unlikely you'll be able to use any remaining value on the card, so keep them in a safe place."

Hot tips:

- If you're claiming a refund or replacement because the product was faulty, you don't need the original packaging.
- Remember that retailers aren't legally obliged to exchange or refund items if you change your mind.
- "No refunds on sale items" signs are illegal - if a product is faulty, damaged or dangerous you are entitled to a refund or a replacement.
- Keep your receipts. Take a photo of your receipt or store it with the 'Buy Smart' app, available from the Office of Fair Trading website.
- If you suspect any misleading price signage, report it to the Office of Fair Trading.
- If you receive a gift card, set a reminder on your phone or calendar to remind you to use the card before it expires.

Where are the Police?

Response to TC

For a start you are not my friend.

You may also be surprised at how educated I am, compared to yourself.

Secondly I have never had a ticket of any kind from police or others after many years of driving and living on this earth.

Thirdly I dare say, I have ventured a lot further than the North Lakes area and other states of Australia and overseas during recent years.

I would like to inform you that I leave my house every day as most normal people do. I am well aware of the infrastructure that has been happening in and around North Lakes.

I have no fabulous idea as you say, on how to rectify the problem, those that are paid and trained to manage and plan such things are the ones that should be doing this.

It appears your very fragile on this topic, makes one wonder why this would be?

PO

The Corso

When the North Lakes library was located in the 2 story building in Discovery Dr, the patrons respected the fact that it was a library and there was peace and quiet whenever the library was operating. It was a great place to visit and read and respect the surrounding.

The "LIBRARY" in the Corso is NOT a library but as the staff will tell you, it is a community centre.

If the Mayor and our Councillor can stop patting themselves on the back for 5 minutes, they should visit the "library" where they will find it is impossible to sit near the wall facing North Lakes Dr as the morning sun streams in through the untinted windows.

It is bad enough to have to visit this "library" during non school holiday times where it only a child minding centre, but now it is total mayhem, with dozens of children and minders shouting, yelling and screaming all the time.

It is impossible to read a book or spend any quality time on any of the computers.

Come on council, give us our quiet and peaceful library back.

MWL

NL Speed Traps

Just would to thank North Lakes Police for seeing (my first ever) speed trap on Bounty Boulevard earlier.

Now that you guys have started using decoys, what about considering placing the traps in the rat running streets, where 40km's speed limit is a joke.

BZ.

Overtaking Bikes

We know the laws and the rules but a slight hiccup when approaching bike riders on Mt Glorious on Boxing Day 2016. What to do?

Time was on our side, we waited before going around, though some time later a small red car approached a bike rider with us approaching from the opposite direction, thinking the driver would also wait then go around the bike rider. No, the driver overtook bike on the wrong side of the road. We were almost clipped (head on).

Please all road users: THINK

None of us are perfect but lets try to get it right on the roads. Let's stay safe on the Roads. Our Drive from Gatton to Redcliffe and back went well. We Survived Our Drive. Hope to survive many more drives.

ROAR's version of Aladdin is in the traditional British style with Prince Pekoe being played as a Principal Boy and Widow Twankey being played by a man. The action is set in Peking, China for the most part with one scene in Act 2 taking place inside an Egyptian pyramid.

Aladdin and his brother Wishee Washee help out their rather disorganised mother Widow Twankey who runs the local laundry/bag wash. Aladdin has fallen in love with Princess Say Wen, the daughter of the Emperor and Empress of China. The wicked Egyptian magician Abanazar enlists Aladdin's help to find the magic lamp and things start to go wrong from there. Look out for the magical Genie and mystical Fairy of the Ring.

E-cigarette use prompts cautionary warning

WRITES ANITA GREEN

Use of electronic cigarettes (e-cigarettes) has increased rapidly worldwide in recent years, and while some experts suggest e-cigarettes can be used as a pathway to the reduction of tobacco smoking, others characterize them as undermining efforts to disparage tobacco use.

According to a report by the WHO, electronic nicotine delivery systems are the subject of a public health dispute among bona fide tobacco-control advocates, which has become more divisive as their use has increased.

One study, by Professor Igor Burstyn at the Drexel University School of Public Health, found there was no evidence to suggest smoking e-cigarettes exposed the user to contaminants that are associated with risk to health at a level that would warrant attention.

However, the Cancer Council identifies the use of e-cigarettes as concerning, as the limited evidence available points to a risk that widespread electronic cigarette use could undo the decades of public policy work in Australia that has reduced the appeal of cigarette use in children.

Cancer Council Australia and the National Heart Foundation of Australia are also concerned about unsubstantiated claims that electronic cigarettes can assist smokers in quitting.

Products currently on the market in Australia have not been approved by the Therapeutic Goods Administration for safety, quality and efficacy.

There are claims to suggest e-cigarettes can aid quitting, but there are also reports of users increasing their nicotine addiction, from dual use of e-cigarettes and tobacco, or from e-cigarettes acting as a pathway for tobacco and nicotine addiction.

The sale and possession or use of e-cigarettes containing nicotine is unlawful in all Australian jurisdictions under poison control legislation, however smoke free laws do not apply to electronic cigarettes.

While the short and long term health effects of e-cigarettes remain unknown, anecdotal reports of e-cigarettes being confiscated in schools have already been identified by Cancer Council Australia.

Cancer Council is also concerned that there are virtually no restrictions on electronic cigarettes without nicotine, some of which with fruit and confectionary flavours have been promoted to young people.

Given the potential associated risks, Cancer Council Australia and the National Heart Foundation of Australia are advising extreme caution on electronic cigarettes.

As per their position statement, Cancer Council Australia and the National Heart Foundation of Australia recommend the following public policy measures are considered to assist in protecting young Australians from the potential harms of widespread electronic cigarette use:

- Ban the retail sale of non-nicotine electronic cigarettes
- Ensure smoke free laws in each state and territory cover e-cigarette use
- Prohibit advertising and promotion of electronic cigarettes, consistent with tobacco advertising prohibitions

SOME EXPERTS SUGGEST E-CIGARETTES CAN BE USED AS A PATHWAY TO THE REDUCTION OF TOBACCO SMOKING

YOUR STARS

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: It's not easy going slow while others race ahead, but there's a reason why the tortoise always beats the hare.

Pisces Feb 20-March 20: This is the perfect time to have a discussion about a sensitive topic. The tone for the day is dispassionate yet respectful.

Aries March 21-April 20: Be more withholding rather than divulging everything straight away. That way the other party has to follow your lead.

Taurus April 21-May 21: True friendships aren't based on who you know. It's based on the people who truly know you.

Gemini May 22-June 21: It would be easier to duck out of the problem you face but your interests piqued. Besides, you've never been one to walk away from a riddle.

Cancer June 22-July 23: You care more about substance while someone else looks quite taken with appearance. Show this person how one adds to the other, not detracts.

Leo July 24-Aug 23: A problematic situation is settled once and for all. It's true that you've heard this before, but this time it's for good.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: Does the current life path look familiar? The wonderful thing about learning from the past is getting the chance to apply it to the here and now.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: The only way to get out of the jam is by distancing yourself from someone you said you'd stand by. Inch your way towards the door and maybe they won't notice.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: People can try to justify their actions all they like. You know your right and shouldn't budge until they own up to their mistakes.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: As you grudgingly fill out forms in triplicate or even quadruplicate, remember this is protecting your interests.

Capricorn DEC 22-Jan 20: Never one to take risks when it comes to money, you surprise yourself by pursuing an unusual offer. This proves fortuitous.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF DETOXING YOUR BODY?

By Debb Webber, Zen Chi Natural Therapies

Detoxification is the process of removing toxins from the body. The process to detoxify your body involves many different elements such as herbal detoxification regimens, change of diet and vitamin supplements which our Homeopath or Naturopath can assist you with OR even a Detox Foot Spa. It is one of the best ways to rid your body of toxins, which can slow it down and make it unhealthy. The process of detoxification requires some discipline.

PHYSICAL BENEFITS

The most noticeable benefits from detoxification are the physical ones. Since the toxins store up in major organs, detoxification will help these areas the most. The organs which are affected, such as the liver and stomach, will begin to work more effectively. After the detox is completed, you may feel "lighter" and have more energy. Also, since a detox is used to clear away free radicals, your body's immune system will be stronger. Finally, a detoxification regimen will clear your blood, helping it circulate better.

MENTAL BENEFITS

Toxins and free radicals that accumulate in the body can also affect brain functions. Before a detox, you may have trouble sleeping, chronic fatigue, and trouble with your concentration. Once you work through this process, many of these issues will gradually disappear. You will be able to sleep better and concentrate more and optimize your health and wellbeing.

SOLO

Ridgeback mix. 1 Yr. Male

Solo is a placid & mellow big boy, he has a such a beautiful and gentle nature and would make a great family dog. He enjoys playing & wrestling with his foster fur siblings but is also very comfy doing his own thing. He also loves to receive and also give cuddles and will even try to get on your lap if allowed.

He is a quick learner and would thrive with further training. Solo is crate trained & toilet trained and would need a home where he could sleep inside and be close to his humans.

He would love to have a family of his own who could take him for daily walks and let him snuggle up at their feet at an evening. He has so much love to give, once you meet him you will want to take him home.

If you want to give Solo his forever home visit www.safehavenanimalrescueinc.com and browse the 'Adoptions' section.

New electricity rebate to help those who need it most

THE NEW ELECTRICITY CONCESSIONS THAT WILL HELP 157,000 EXTRA QUEENSLAND FAMILIES WITH A COMMONWEALTH HEALTH CARE CARD SAVE $330 A YEAR ON THEIR ENERGY BILLS CAME INTO EFFECT JANUARY 1 2017

Under the changes, eligible households will be able to contact their electricity retailer to apply for the concession from 1 April, but it will be back-dated to 1 January.

Minister for Energy Mark Bailey said the changes were the Government's response to the recent Queensland Productivity Commission findings.

"The Palaszczuk Government's extended assistance through its Electricity Rebate will bring even more help to vulnerable households with Health Care Card holders and asylum seekers eligible to receive around $330 a year to help pay their energy bills," Mr Bailey said.

"Reforming the energy concessions framework to improve support to vulnerable customers is a key element of the Government's response to the QPC's findings.

"Importantly, there will be no changes to existing eligibility for Pensioner Concession Card holders, Department of Veterans' Affairs Card holders or Queensland Seniors Card holders."

Mr Bailey said the Palaszczuk Government was committed to stabilising electricity prices after they surged during the Newman-Nicholls government.

"We came to government with a firm commitment to Queenslanders to stabilise electricity prices and this is another step in following through on our word," he said.

"Under the first two years of the Palaszczuk Government, prices have increased annually for households by an average of just 1.2 per cent. This is in comparison to the 43 per cent rise during the Newman-Nicholls years.

"The stabilisation is in part due to our decision to direct the State electricity providers Ergon and Energex not to appeal the Australian Energy Regulator's decision to curb network costs.

Key elements in the government's response to the QPC Report include:

- providing additional funding starting at $48 million per annum (or $170.1 million to 2019-20) to extend the electricity rebate to Commonwealth Health Care Card Holders so that an additional 157,000

low-income Queensland families are better supported. From 1 January 2017, low-income households and families will become eligible to receive around $330 a year to help pay their energy bills;

- retaining the electricity rebate for holders of a Pensioner Concession Card, Veteran Affairs Gold Card or a Queensland Seniors Card;
- supporting regional business customers by providing $10 million over two years to deliver improved access to digital metering, greater information about tariff options and co-contributions to help customers invest in operation and equipment changes to manage bill impacts;
- maintaining our commitment to building the uptake of renewable energy in Queensland; and
- identifying improvements to the governance arrangements for the government's energy businesses to strengthen shareholder oversight.

Health Care Card holders can apply for the rebate by contacting their electricity retailer from 1 April 2017. Once verified, the rebate will start appearing on the eligible customers' next electricity bill, with payments back-dated to 1 January 2017, or the period when the customer became eligible after 1 January.

Information regarding the application process for asylum seekers will be released shortly.

Customers can keep up to date by visiting www.dews.qld.gov.au/electricity/rebates or follow 'Renewable Energy Queensland' on Facebook or Twitter or telephone 13 QGOV (13 74 68).

"These additional concessions are responsible reforms that will provide a real benefit to these sometimes vulnerable groups," Mr Bailey said.

HEALTH CARE CARD HOLDERS CAN APPLY FOR THE REBATE FROM 1 APRIL 2017.

THE REBATE WILL START APPEARING ON THE ELIGIBLE CUSTOMERS' NEXT ELECTRICITY BIL.,

PAYMENTS WILL BE BACK-DATED TO 1 JANUARY 2017

Previous Owner's Susan & John say:-

"My wife Susan and I have both worked as real estate agents in the past so we had an idea how it all works. What a pleasure it was to engage the services of Team Wilkie, I found them both to be, no nonsense, honest and upfront and if they said they were going to do something or achieve something they did exactly that. By reputation alone we already knew that they were the areas top agents in a business where you don't become #1 for nothing. "No such thing as good luck". Honesty, integrity, hard work and a heart for the people and for a successful outcome is how I would describe Team Wilkie. Buying or selling, in my opinion, they are the best".

REIQ launches training website

THE REAL ESTATE INSTITUTE OF QUEENSLAND HAS LAUNCHED A NEW REAL ESTATE TRAINING WEBSITE, TIMED TO COINCIDE WHEN PEOPLE ARE MOST LIKELY CONSIDERING A NEW CAREER.

The site, MyRealEstateJobs.com.au offers advice and a wealth of information about the broad range of careers that a real estate qualification can deliver and also outlines the courses available through the state's leading real estate training provider, the REIQ.

REIQ CEO Antonia Mercorella said with the dawn of a new year, people often reviewed their options.

"After the last of the Christmas lunch is packed away, people often start to think about returning to work and this is when they wonder if there might be a better career.

"Our new site, MyRealEstateJobs.com.au offers detailed information about all the jobs you can choose from when you have real estate qualifications.

"A real estate career isn't limited to being a sales agent or a property manager. You can be an auctioneer, a buyer's agent, a business broker, or an administrator, and you can also be your own boss if you choose to establish your own business," she said.

The website showcases real life experiences from leading real estate professionals, including Ray White auctioneers Haesley Cush and Phil Parker, Place sales agent Cathy Richards, Re/Max property manager Katie Knight, and Harcourts principal Dane Atherton.

The website also offers prospective students the opportunity to attend a free session delivered by an experienced real estate professional, who will share the realities of a career in real estate.

"Our free Introduction To Real Estate sessions are always very popular because they give those who are thinking about a career change an understanding of what real estate is really like – the good bits and the challenges!" Ms Mercorella said.

To promote the new site, the REIQ launched a marketing campaign which began on Boxing Day.

The REIQ is the peak body for real estate profession and the leading provider of real estate training in Queensland, delivering a broad range of study options to anyone considering a career change. Courses can be done online and are self-paced, or there are classroom options available for those who like more support and guidance.

Make your financial resolutions a reality

AT THE START OF A NEW YEAR MANY OF US MAKE A NUMBER OF RESOLUTIONS THAT WE WISH TO INTEGRATE INTO OUR LIVES.

"These resolutions can often include a commitment to eat better, exercise more or be better with our finances," Mortgage Choice chief executive officer John Flavell said

"Whether you're aiming to become a better saver, or you're wanting to save for a home deposit, the key is to not let your resolution fall flat."

Thankfully, Mr Flavell said there are a few easy steps everyone can follow to ensure any financial resolutions become a reality.

1. Set a goal

According to Mr Flavell, the key to saving more money is setting a financial goal that is specific and realistic.

"You can have a large goal in mind, such as buying a home, but you should also break it up into smaller goals that will be easier to achieve," he said.

"If your goal is to save more money, give yourself a dollar figure and a target date to achieve that by, as this will keep you accountable. Savings calculators are helpful tools that can assist you in working out how much you can save a month and how long it will take for you to reach your savings goal."

"You should review your goals at least once every six months to track how you're doing. If you find that you are not making much progress, rather than giving up, make changes so that you can achieve your goals."

2. Set up a budget

Mr Flavell said a budget was an essential factor in achieving any financial goal.

"By creating a budget, you will have full control of your finances as you will know how much you are spending and saving," he said.

"Tracking where your money is going also allows you to make clear decisions about your purchases, see what expenses you can potentially cut back on, and plan your spending ahead of time."

Mr Flavell said a budget did not have to be too complicated.

"It can be a simple document such as a spreadsheet, where you note down your income and all your expenses for the month," he said.

"The trick is to review and update it regularly to make sure it always aligns with your current financial or personal situation."

3. Review your spending

"You can boost your savings significantly by cutting back on certain expenses, or finding more affordable options," Mr Flavell said.

"Look at your current contracts - like gym memberships and or your phone contract and see if there are easy ways for you to reduce the amount you spend each month. Call your gym up and ask for a discount, or research your phone provider options online and see if there is a cheaper supplier on the market.

"While you may only save a few dollars here and there, not only does every cent count, but every cent takes you one step closer to your end financial goal."

4. Reduce debt

Another great way to reach your financial goal faster is to pay down your existing debt.

"The Christmas period is an expensive time of the year, so you have probably racked up debts on your credit card," Mr Flavell said.

"When you get your credit card bill, aim to pay these off completely or minimise them as soon as possible. You should also try and pay more than the minimum amount, which is typically 2% of your closing balance, to avoid paying additional interest.

"When you pay off your debts, you free up your cash flow. This means you have more money in your back pocket each month that you can put towards your financial goals."

5. Shop around for better deals

Now that you know how much you're saving and how to potentially increase your cash flow, the next step is working out the best place to put your money.

"If you want your money to work as hard as possible for you, you need to ensure you are saving it in the right location," Mr Flavell said.

"Get online and research the various options provided by Australia's lenders. By doing your research, you will see what term deposit facilities or savings accounts will offer you the greatest return on your dollar.

"Before making any final decisions however, speak with your bank or your local broker to ensure it is the right financial move for you and your end goals."
